Tel Aviv, Israel, Sept. 22 — (AP)—Jewish military authorities announced Arabs ambushed and killed four persons in a United Nations convoy at Jerusalem today.

No United Nations personnel was hurt, the announcement said, but one of those killed was described here as "an American engineer who came here recently as a technical adviser."

The others killed all were Jews, one of them a woman and one the commander of the white flag convoy, the announcement added.

United Nations headquarters identified the American as John Locke Lewis of Philadelphia, Pa. He was said to have come to Israel as a consultant only a few days ago.

If the Moscow talks over Berlin fail, the three western powers are in "absolute agreement" on a joint policy, British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin told the House of Commons today.

Returning to London briefly from Paris, Bevin pledged Britain's support to Count Folke Bernadotte's recommendations for the solution to the Palestine problem. Britain thus joined the United States in backing the Bernadotte plan.

Speaking on the Berlin crisis, Bevin told the British parliament that "we are in close consultation—we are still working it out—and shall be continuing our consultation in Paris during the coming week."

He denied rumors there had been disagreements between the three western powers. He said the three were in absolute agreement on a Berlin policy—and had a plan for joint action if the talks failed.

Temple's Ordinance Will Not Be Needed

Temple, Tex., Sept. 22 (AP)—It's a good thing President Truman scheduled a campaign stop here. The town marshal halted one presidential train that was scheduled to pass through without stopping.

It's a law.

The city ordinance goes back to 1904, when Temple residents heard that President Theodore Roosevelt intended to go straight through town without a pause.

The city council, led by the late Mayor Fred Hamm, passed an ordinance requiring all presidential trains to stop at least five minutes.

The city marshal and county sheriff halted Roosevelt's train, climbed aboard and served papers on the engineer.

Roosevelt made a speech, complimenting the city on its nerve.

The ordinance never has been repealed, but it never has been needed since.

Truman's presidential special is scheduled to stop here for 15 minutes Sept. 27.

Florida Hurricane Is Aimed for Rich Citrus Belt Today

Miami, Fla., Sept. 22 (AP)—A drenching hurricane with its 100-mile-an-hour winds still intact, moved over Lake Okeechobee in south central Florida today and aimed for the state's rich citrus belt.

Two persons have died and many have suffered minor injuries in the big storm which blasted the Florida keys with 160 mile gusts early yesterday and pounced on Miami last night.

Heavy gales and rain still battered the Keys and Miami today.

The center of the storm is expected to pass into the Atlantic about 5 o'clock (CST) tonight in the vicinity of Melbourne, 160 miles north of Miami and over Merritts island, just northeast of Melbourne, about 8 or 9 p. m., the weather bureau said.

The hurricane eye passed close to the sugar-cane growing region at Clewiston on the lake shore about 7 a. m.

Communications still were out today with Key West, where President Truman has his "Little White House." Everglades City, 70 miles west of Miami, and Clewiston.

Power in many Miami homes was off—either caused by failure or deliberate cutting to keep people from being injured or killed by live wires.

The "eye" of the hurricane passed 50 miles to the west of Miami last night.

Need of Additional Room in Dixon City Hall Is Considered

Council Also Contacts to House District's Fire
Equipment

The city council last night approved and signed a contract with the Dixon Community Fire Protection district providing for co-operation in fighting city and rural blazes.

The fire district's new engine will be housed in the city fire department, together with equipment. The city will also furnish sleeping space for two district employees.

In return, the city is granted the right to call upon the district truck in case of an emergency.

The contract is subject to cancellation on 90 days' notice by either party.

Asks Lighting Survey
Mayor J. Fred Hofmann has asked the Illinois Northern Utilities Co. to make a survey of the street lighting system, believing Dixon's facilities to be outmoded.

An estimate of the cost for new lights, particularly in the residential district, is to be furnished by the INU.

Some discussion at the council table centered around the city's need for additional office, storage and police court space. The need for more room is growing serious, it is said. However, about 1,000 square feet of space at the city hall is currently occupied by a non-rent paying group, the Spanish American War Veterans and other organizations.

Wooden bridges on Monroe avenue and Ninth street will be posted for travel at the driver's risk, it was decided, when a request by Street Commissioner Joseph Vaile for repair money was turned down. Vaile asked for an appropriation from the public benefit fund, stating that funds were not available in the street department budget at this time.

U. Illinois Trustees Will Meet in Peoria

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 22 (AP)—Trustees of the University of Illinois will meet in Peoria tomorrow for the first time in the university's 80-year history.

The trustees accepted the invitation of Kenney E. Williamson, Peoria member of the board, to hold a regular session at the Peoria Country Club.

John R. Fornoff, Streator newspaper publisher, will preside.

Army Asks 15,000 Men in December

Washington, Sept. 22 (AP)—The defense department said today it has asked Selective Service to provide 15,000 draftees for the Army in December. This is an increase of 5,000 over the first call for November.

The increase is in line with a previous announcement that monthly quotas would start at about 10,000 and rise to about 30,000 by next year as the Army builds towards its authorized strength of 870,000.

The Air Force and Navy are not asking for draftees at present. They are relying on volunteer recruiting to meet their needs.

The Army has notified Selective Service to begin giving pre-induction physical examinations on Oct. 4 to registrants who have been found otherwise acceptable for induction.

The munitions board, which relays the draft requests to Selective Service, has asked that the men be available for induction during the first 20 days of December. This is to avoid inducting men during the Christmas holidays.

Little Pamela Lamphere Has First of Three Operations Today

Chicago, Sept. 22 (AP)—Pamela Lamphere, the baby with her bladder outside her body, underwent her first operation today to correct the rare condition. Physicians said the operation was a success.

The surgery, first of three required to treat the case, was performed at the County hospital by Drs. Harry A. Oberhiesman and John L. Keeley.

The condition of Pamela, 22 months old, has caused a rift between her parents, Fred, 23, and Irene, 21. Physicians said the abnormality would be fatal unless she was operated upon. The

The oldest child, Richard Baker, four and one-half years old, burned to death and only the skull has been recovered from the debris at the location marked in the above photo, which is being viewed by neighbors.

4,000 Attend Ohio Plowing Events in Spite of Cold Rain

A crowd estimated at more than 4,000 persons braved the drizzling rain of Tuesday to attend the contour plowing contest and conservation field day program at the Dewey Johnson farm, one mile south of Ohio in Bureau county, which was sponsored by the Illinois State Soil Conservation districts board and the Bureau County Soil Conservation district.

Hiller Swanson, 25, of Caladonia, Boone county, emerged the new contour plowing champion of Illinois, scoring 86.55 points using a two-bottom plow and tractor, both 13 years old.

Gerry Haberhorn of Livingston county was second with 85.25, and Fred Alsene of McLean county was third with 85.00 points. Last year's winner, Lloyd Schafer of Livingston county finished ninth. Last year's runner-up, John Hood of Bureau county, was fourth.

Dwight Rogier of Highland, Ill., won a National Safety Council plaque as the contestant using the most efficient safety precautions in his plowing.

Program to Be Broadcast
Yesterday afternoon a fleet of tractors operated on a snail's pace pulling automobiles from muddy fields, but despite the weather conditions, the event attracted a huge crowd of spectators.

The Prairie Farmer conducted a recording of the program to be broadcast Sunday evening and representatives of several agricultural publications were represented.

The program started at 9:30.

Paris Voters Favor Higher School Taxes

Paris, Ill., Sept. 22 (AP)—Paris Union school district voters have approved 1,062 to 827, a $60,000 increase in the district's educational fund.

The boost voted yesterday will be met by a tax increase.

Sunt of Schools Eugene Johnson said most of the additional funds will be used to restore Paris high schools' standing in the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

Paris was put on two years probation by the accrediting association last spring. The high school was then called under-equipped and understaffed.

Upkeep of State's Highways Is Costly

Salt Lake City, Sept. 22 (AP)—One way to prevent costly spring breakup of highways is to bar heavy traffic during the thaw period.

M. J. Hoffman, Minnesota Commissioner of Highways, told the American Association of Highway Officials yesterday that his state does it.

Hoffman said Minnesota keeps the five per cent of heavy vehicles which do the damage from the highways during the thaws. The roads, which otherwise might be closed to all traffic, are kept open to 95 per cent of the traffic which does little harm.

He said the practice makes possible restoration of the roads to 100 per cent traffic much sooner and in better condition—than would otherwise be possible.

W. W. Polk, chief highway engineer of the Illinois Division of Highways and vice president of the Highway Officials, said "maintenance of state and local roads has required almost half of our annual highway expenditure—a sum equal to 86 per cent of construction expenditures."

He said "overweight loads still are being moved over the nation's narrow and structurally weak highway sections."

Politics Roundup of Develop- ments in Nation Polit- ical Picture by AP

(By the Associated Press)

The nation's natural resources were subjects of hot dispute today among all four top Democratic and Republican candidates.

While President Truman and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey jostled over western reclamation projects, their running mates hauled out party records on soil conservation and other farm problems in a quickening drive for November votes.

Truman, speaking last night in Salt Lake City, said the Democrats stand for "rapid and uninterrupted development" of a west that has been "crudely and wickedly cheated by a power lobby working through the GOP-controlled congress."

Declaring that the Republicans offer "strangulation" for the west, he said that under the Harding, Coolidge and Hoover administrations "quick and greedy exploitation was the order of the day."

"Never before in history," the president said, "had so much been wasted by so few."

Dewey retorted in a Denver address that the Truman administration is pursuing "careless policies" in handling America's natural resources. He added:

"We have reached the stage in our country's development when to be careless is to gamble with our country's security and the future of free men everywhere."

The New York governor called in his second major campaign talk for a "brand new approach" to the saving of America's timber, oil and other resources.

Housekeeper of Lemay to Take Lie Detector Testing

Milwaukee, Sept. 22 (AP)—A lie detector test for Mrs. Eva Clark was postponed until today when the 51-year-old housekeeper refused to submit to the quiz yesterday afternoon.

Detective Capt. Adolph Kraemer had said Mrs. Clark would take the test at 2 p. m. yesterday as part of a police investigation into the disappearance of Mrs. Celia Lemay, 54, last June 15.

Mrs. Clark was the Lemay housekeeper. She moved to Newark, N. J. about June 25, when Edmond Lemay, the missing woman's husband, was transferred there to manage the American Hair & Felt Co. plant.

Sheriff George Hanley said Lemay left for New Jersey without reporting the disappearance of his wife. Hanley said he believes Mrs. Lemay met with foul play. Lemay claims he did not report the disappearance because he was ashamed to admit his wife walked out on him.

Police Aid Requested
City police entered the investigation last week at the request of county authorities. Mrs. Clark was questioned by detectives Monday and Kraemer said later she had agreed to a lie detector test yesterday.

16-Year-Old Girl on Trial for Dad's Death

Wheaton, Ill., Sept. 22 (AP)—The murder trial of 16-year-old Frances Korbelik, accused of killing her father, William, 42, with a shotgun, opened today in DuPage County Circuit court.

A jury of seven women and five men was selected yesterday. Judge W. G. Knott was to hear opening arguments this morning.

Korbelik was president of local 2539, CIA United Steelworkers Union. He had been missing four months before his wife, Frances, 40, and another daughter, Dorothy, 15, found his body.

It was under a pile of lumber in the Korbelik basement in Tri-City village near Hinsdale, a Chicago suburb.

Counsel for Miss Korbelik has an attempt will be made to present a statement purportedly signed by the girl from being admitted in evidence.

State's Attorney Lee Daniels of Frances, in the statement, related she killed her father after he raped her.

Los Angeles County Defines Comic Books

Los Angeles, Sept. 22 (AP)—Comic books should stick to comedy, the Los Angeles county board of supervisors has decided.

The board adopted an ordinance yesterday banning all so-called comic books which deal with such unfunny subjects as murder, burlesque, kidnapping, arson and assault with deadly weapons.

The law sets up a fine of $500 or six months imprisonment for violators.

The ordinance was drafted, explained County Counsel Harold Kennedy, to prohibit the sale of such magazines to children.

Farm House South of Waukegan Is Scene of Tragedy Last Night

Richard Baker Burns to Death; Step-Father in Critical Condition

Richard Baker, aged four and one-half years, was burned to death in fire which destroyed the tenant house on the William Nagle farm half a mile south of Waukegan at about 6:00 o'clock last night. The house was occupied by his step-father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Bell, and the former was reported in a critical condition today at the Katherine Shaw Bethel hospital here, to which he was taken by neighbors, who were powerless to save any of the contents of the five-room structure.

According to reports the family was preparing supper on an

Initiation

The new Dixon Fire Protection district tank truck made its first trip last evening, hauled 1,000 gallons of water to the farm fire south of Waukegan. The truck was manned by A. C. Higley, Joe Link, who is to be the regular operator of the new bug truck, which is expected to arrive Oct. 5 and Alvin Shaeley, volunteer fireman. Nine minutes was required to drive from the scene of the fire to Waukegan to refill the 800 gallon tank and return and the new equipment operated perfectly. The big truck, it was announced today will be delivered with two-way radio which may operate through either the sheriff's office or city police stations.

oil stove when Bell undertook to refill the tank from a five gallon can. The can exploded, throwing the flaming oil over Bell, as the room became filled with flames which spread rapidly to other sections of the house.

Mrs. Bell was said to have grabbed the three smaller children as her husband attempted to rescue Richard, but he was prevented from doing so as his clothes were burning. He was shoved out the kitchen door by his wife. She ran to the Nagle farm home a short distance south of their home, where her screams were heard and the members of the Nagle family rushed to the scene to find Bell dazed and staggering about the yard, his clothes burned from his body. The flesh on his face and hands was badly burned, and reports today indicated that slight hope was entertained for his recovery.

Two Fire Trucks Called

The tank truck which arrived late last week for use in Dixon's recently organized fire protection district and the community truck from the fire department went to the scene but the entire structure was enveloped in flames and the firemen were powerless to save any of the property. When informed that one of the children had been trapped in the burning building, the firemen worked until late last night pouring water into that section of the debris where the child's body was presumed to have been.

Repeatedly the trucks emptied their tanks and refilled them at a farm tank at Waukegan where an electric pump furnished the water supply. At the request of Chief

Derailment Blocks Crossing in Nelson

Five loaded coal gondolas of a Nelson-bound Northwestern freight train No. 172, were derailed at the Emmett crossing on the Rock Island crossing at 12:15 o'clock this morning as the train was pulling into the south yards at Nelson. Northbound traffic on the double-track line was tied up until about 10 o'clock this morning until the wrecking crew from Clinton arrived, and east and west highway traffic on the Rock Island road was detoured for several hours.

A broken journal, due to heating, on a car containing more than 100 tons of company coal enroute from Bend to Butler, Wis., caused the derailment. The end of the axle was burned off and the broken part was found this morning about a mile south of the wreck scene. None of the train crew was injured and the five loaded cars remained upright and were replaced on the rails by the wrecking crane.

Only a small section of the track was damaged but all of the crossing planking was splintered and had to be replaced by the maintenance crews of Nelson who assisted as the derailed cars were placed back on the tracks.

Louis Bromfield To Speak at Dinner in Dixon Next Month

Noted Author-Farmer To Talk to Dinner Group October 28

Farmers of Lee county are to have an opportunity of hearing a nationally prominent agricultural speaker in Dixon on October 28, at a dinner to be served at the Brinton Memorial Masonic Temple at 6:30 p. m. Louis Bromfield, noted author, farmer and banker will talk on soil conservation and present day agricultural problems, a subject on which he is thoroughly conversant and one on which he has made an extensive study.

Announcement of this opportunity afforded Lee county farmers was made today by C. E. Yale, of Amboy, County advisor of the Lee County Farm Bureau and Max Van Scoy, president of the Lee County Bankers' Federation, the event being made possible through the cooperation of these two organizations. Arrangements are being made to accommodate about 600 farmers and those interested in farming and soil conservation. Distribution of tickets for this unusual dinner meeting is being handled through the Farm Bureau and the county banks.

Bromfield operates extensive farming interests at his Malabar estate at Lucas, Ohio, and is considered a national authority on agriculture, a subject upon which he has written some interesting and timely books. His novel, "Early Autumn," which was published in 1926 won for him the Pulitzer prize. He is also the author of such outstanding novels as "Pleasant Valley," "Possession," "A Good Woman," "The Strange Case of Miss Annie Spragg," "Twenty-four Hours," "The Farm," "Here Today and Gone Tomorrow," "The Rains Came," "Night in Bombay," "Wild is the River," "Until the Day Break," "Mrs. Parkington." Plays written include "Times Have Changed" and "Deluxe." He has also written countless books on music, politics, agriculture and soil conservation in addition to being a regular contributor to many popular and serious magazines and reviews.

His Malabar farm consists of 1100 acres. The enterprise combines many projects—land restoration, soil and water conservation, self sufficiency in food production—and is organized as a cooperative in which the employees share profits. Bromfield has given much time to agricultural problems and annually delivers scores of talks largely on agricultural problems and politics.

Says Progressives Have Way To Voice Choices

East St. Louis, Ill., Sept. 22 — (AP) — A Progressive (Wallace) party candidate says there is a way for progressives to make known their choice in the Nov. 2 general election despite the recent action barring the party from the Illinois ballot.

Curtis D. MacDougall, the Progressive candidate for senator, told about 250 persons who paid $1 each to attend the political meeting.

"I can't reveal at this time how you'll be able to make your preference known on Nov. 2, but let me tell you there is a way to do it. There are more ways than one of skinning a political cat."

Main speaker on the program was Sen. Glen Taylor of Idaho, the party's candidate for vice president. He appeared about two hours later than scheduled after visiting a CIO picket line at the American Zinc Company plant in nearby Fairmount City.

"Russia lost 20,000,000 people in the past war," Taylor said. "They should want peace. I can't go along with all this talk of war with Russia. All this talk of Russian expansion doesn't hold water."

A Thought for Today
So we see that they could not enter in because of unbelief.—Hebrews 3:19.

Surely scripture is right when it makes the sin of sins that unbelief, which is at bottom nothing else than a refusal to take the cup of salvation. Surely no sharper grief can be inflicted upon the Spirit of God than when we leave
His gifts neglected and unappropriated.—Alexander MacLaren.

Do We Want Less Meat?
There has been an increasing amount of talk, much of it politically inspired, about an alleged need for rationing meat and controlling the price by governmental fiat. Inasmuch as that will be one of the major domestic issues of the year, the public should have a sound knowledge of the facts.

First of all, controls of any kind could not increase the aggregate supply of meat by a single pound. The remedy to the meat situation lies in the production of sufficient meat animals to handle today's tremendous demand.

What controls would do—precisely as they did in the past—
would be to drive large quantities of meat into the black market. All of us can remember the OPA days when "No Meat Today" signs were common in retail stores. It would happen again.

Most important of all, the strong probability is that rationing and other artificial controls would discourage the production of meat animals by livestock growers. They would have no assurance that they would be able to sell their stock
for a price that would meet costs, much less return a profit for the work and the risk and the investment involved. Then there would be less meat for everyone, the available supply would bring exorbitant prices in the black market, and, in addition, the chances are that a serious grain surplus would be created.

No one knows what the future
course of meat prices or any other prices will be, but we do know that artificial price and rationing controls are much like the process of tinkering with a thermometer—
the basic situation is not corrected. In a free market prices are fixed by supply and demand—not by some bureaucrat's idea of what they should be. Furthermore, in a free market they are the lowest prices possible under the conditions of the moment.

The New Railroad Rates
The Interstate Commerce Commission has made permanent three-emergency freight rate increases
it had granted the railroads. Rates will be about 25 per cent higher than they were prior to the first increase. The railroads had asked for 30 per cent.

The ICC took final action only after many months of the most exhaustive investigation. Hundreds

As Pegler Sees It

By WESTBROOK PEGLER
New York—Closer acquaintance with the affairs of the Roerich
circle which dwell in a tall joss-house on Riverside Drive only confirms the story of Henry Wallace's gullibility. However, one does begin to doubt that Roerich really did set himself up as a divine person except, perhaps, to Wallace, for the purpose of making a fool of him and exploiting the influence which Franklin D. Roosevelt had granted him.

I am not now willing to believe that Louis L. Horch, the speculator in international exchange who became a chum of Wallace and spent a lot of money promoting Roerich, really fell for the divinity
racket of the Russian mahatma.

Wallace put Horch into a succession of jobs in the departments of agriculture and commerce,
of which he was secretary, and when Horch suddenly sprang a trap on Roerich and the sucker bond-holders of the American investing public—mostly Henry Wallace's beloved "little people"—Wallace swung in behind Louis to help in the shake-out. Roerich was in Asia when Horch decided to eliminate him from the situation, grab
the lamassary for his own property and seize Roerich's paintings. The books were dematerialized by some process much more practical than oriental magic so the extent of Horch's investment and his profit is not known. Just one day before an important court proceeding in the litigation for title to the skyscraper, Wallace released, by a sneaky process, a loaded
"news" story insinuating that Roerich was a spy. This came out of the department of agriculture
which had sent Roerich to Asia ostensibly to hunt grass seed. Its effect, if any, on the court, would have been adverse to Roerich.

Later, Roerich sued some news agencies which had handled the story in good faith and Wallace ran like a peeping Tom and hid.

Interested parties, were heard. Thousands of pages of testimony were taken and studied. And the conclusion was that the railroad industry, upon which all agriculture,
industry and commerce depends,
could not continue to operate efficiently without substantial increases in revenue.

Whether or not the 25 per cent increase will be adequate remains to be seen. At best, it will give the railroads a net income below that generally considered fair for regulated public utilities. But, irrespective of that, the ICC's decision is indicative of the fact that the industry must pass on to its customers the largest part of the tremendous increases in the cost of materials, labor, and taxes that have taken place in late years.

It would be a short-sighted man
indeed who would deny the rails
a living wage. Their great wartime performance made the final victory possible. They are today carrying one of the greatest peacetime loads in history. They must spend enormous sums for improvements and new equipment. Their charges for service must be adequate to pay the bills and return
a moderate profit.

She carried the book to the chesterfield and sat down there,
one foot beneath her.

The cover, loosened from much
use, fell open, away from the writing on the fly-leaf. Her eyes widened as she read.

"To darling Hilary on his 12th birthday, with fondest love from his Auntie Dot, Sept. 6, 1916."

She gave a little gasp of triumph and excitement, and read the words again unbelievably. "Why, that's it! I've found you!" And she repeated thoughtfully—"Hilary."

"That's it," he said, watching
her. "Do you like it?"

"Hilary," she said again softly.

"It's perfect. It couldn't have been anything else."

"You heard me!" he marveled.

"You must have heard me—in a way. I can get through to you.

Perhaps with practice I can make you know all the things I want to tell you—because you found your way to me here."

She had pulled a pillow into place behind her back and begun to read, becoming instantly absorbed. Hilary went back to the window seat and sat down there.

He had a good deal to think about, as they sat together through the lazy June morning. He would have come back to England, he was thinking, in the ordinary course of events, some time later in the summer—about the middle of August. He would have come down to Nuns Farningham at once to see about his room. He and Sabrina would have met then—
those clear gray eyes, that wide, engaging smile, the warm little fingers—her implicit confidence in the man who belonged to this room. . . . He would have had to exercise patience—she was so young—but she was his, and he liked to think he would not have been clumsy, or hurried her. . . .

Obviously, whenever, however,
he came, he was to find her here
waiting for him. But it oughtn't
to be like this. Something had gone wrong, out there on the Frontier. It was never meant to be like this.

SHE lifted the book off the shelf and opened it, turning the leaves lovingly.

"Did you read this when you were little, I wonder?" she murmured. "I did, more than once.

It would be fun to read it again
—together."

"The cover, loosened from much

Obviously, whenever, however,
he came, he was to find her here
waiting for him. But it oughtn't
to be like this. Something had
gone wrong, out there on the Frontier. It was never meant to
be like this.

He was in terror that he would be summoned as a witness in the suit. In that case Roerich's lawyers undoubtedly would have had to vindicate the defendants of malice but they certainly would have shown up Bubblehead as the most egregious ass of modern times. And a dirty sneak beside.
The press seems to have been standing around watching a shovel dig a hole during the litigation
over the lamassary. The testimony, plus a little enterprise reporting,
would have implicated Wallace in his nonsense in time to eliminate this appalling slob from the vice-presidency in 1940.

However, the press is not really to blame because it was a real estate suit before a referee, apparently no different from dozens of others which were kicked up by the deflation of the great con game in mortgage bonds. And, by hook or crook, Wallace, Horch and the new deal lawyers managed to keep Bubblehead's name out of the record to the very end.

Roerich's lawyers did manage to sneak in a few references to a character known as "Galahad" and it was known behind the hand that this meant Bubblehead Wallace.
But they seems to have been no
nosey reporters around to ask why he was called Galahad. Such a journalist might have learned that some of the smart members of the circle or cult delighted to rib the poor sap and had told him that everyone in the mystical circle
was supposed to have a cultish name. The fact is that some of them did have them but not all.
Those who went for the incense
and Chinese gongs and flapped around in space took names. Those who just joined for the purpose of looking at Roerich's paintings
or listening to a lot of Bulgarians play cross-handed licks on the piano or saw crazy noises out of egg-shaped fiddles, kept to their square names.

One day Bubblehead had dropped the information that when he was a little boy behind the barn
in Iowa, an aunt of his had said he had a noble soul and would grow up to be like Galahad. Mortimer Sherd had not been heard of at that time. The cult dead-panned this proposition and took to calling him Galahad. So Galahad he was thereafter when the esoteric circle chose up sides and settled down to do a little serious musk sniffing to clear their souls of lint, clinkers and chafe. The time and again that the Horch

name "Galahad" is signed to saving the job of Winston Churchill
addressed to Roerich and other dignitaries at the joss-house. Sometimes the initial "G" is used, Clark Sellers, one of the best handwriting analysts in the country, and two colleagues who happened to be in his office the day he was examining the goofy guru series, all said the handwriting of Henry Wallace in an authentic letter to me,
was the same as that in the signatures "Galahad" and "G."

The reason why I doubt that Horch really believed that Roerich was God Almighty or even an authorized deity is that he stood to make money in the real estate suit by picturing himself as a dope who fell for an oriental mahatma. The first time I talked to him he told me he always had scoffed at the mystical business and chummed up with the Roerich outfit just to get a load of culture. He had made a bundle of money speculating in foreign exchange and was ripping off big coarse notes for Roerich's
hotel bills in Europe and hollering
"magnifique" like a shill for the Louvre if you ask me, they dumped
the culture at the wrong door
because he is about as esthetic as Harry S. Truman. And while we are running over the body I want to do a good job with the back wheels and report that he is a liar.
He lied because after he told me
he never believed in the God business I dug out some old testimony and found where he had said he and some of the others were in a thrall like the disciples of Father Divine.

He also said he was just about busted and really needed his salary
as regional director of the export and import traffic for the department of commerce, the last of the jobs that Wallace gave him. Soon after that, Averill Harriman, who had succeeded Bubblehead, let him out of this job. I don't want to be sorry carelessly because international exchange is his racket
and that kind can make it by phone. And anyway I want to know whether he had anything to do with shipments to Russia. I keep asking congressmen to put it to him but they keep exclaiming,

"turners and editors from Henry (Fin Pi-Yu) I use's Time-Line axis."
Two of the old cultists have said
the time and again that the Horch
name "Galahad" is signed to saving the job of Winston Churchill

THE STORY: Dying in the Indian desert, British secret agent Hilary Shenstone feels a desperate need to get back to England and to Nuns Farningham, his family home. He doesn't know the house has been left and that dreamy, 17-year-old Sabrina, whom he has never met, has adopted his old room and eagerly awaits his return. Hilary does return to England and to Nuns Farningham—after death. He is in his old attic room when Sabrina comes up, sits on the window seat.

XIX
HILARY sat down cautiously on the other end of the window seat and watched her, wondering what was in her thoughts.

At last she spoke again, very low, to herself.

"I don't see why I shouldn't talk to him sometimes—up here,"
she said.

"Who, me?" said Hilary, delighted. "Why not?"

She turned her head slowly, and her eyes went dubiously round the room, blinking a little in the sunlight. If only there was a picture of him, it would seem more reasonable to pretend he was actually there and could hear if she spoke to him. Or if only one knew his name. . . . You couldn't live in a room all your life and not leave your name somewhere in it—or could you?

She cast a helpless, ingratiating
look round the four walls again, as if seeking him. Where could one look? Would be mind very much if—

"If I could find his name," she said wistfully, just above a whisper, "I think I could talk to him
—sometimes."

"My name is Hilary," he told her, with a sudden, aching desire that she know it.

The feeling grew on him minute
by minute as he watched her that some sixth sense of hers
would surely hear him, that already her sensitive, childlike perception had picked up some inpression of his nearness and that she was glad of it.

SHE had risen and gone to the desk, and now she stood looking down at the blotter.

"There's that letter to Thompson," she murmured, "only he didn't sign it."

"The phone rang," he explained.

"He might have had a bookplate," she muttered, drifting disconsolately across the carpet. "But all he ever does is write 'Shen-
stone' inside the cover."

"It's in my Kipling," he said,
following her. "Surely you've had my Kipling off the shelf?"

She stood behind the chesterfield, scowling at the handsome rows of books in their open shelves which lined the walls.

"To your right, Sabrina—the other side of the mantelpiece—"
He spoke urgently from the middle of the room behind her, motionless there, striving desperately now to reach her with some sense of his words. "Those red and gold books on the second shelf to the right of the mantelpiece—they were all given to me by a dear maiden aunt with a vice for scribbling on fly-leaves, dates and all.
Find my Kipling, Sabrina—"

She wavered, hung on one foot,
moved vaguely towards the mantelpiece, and halted again.

"Keep to your right, Sabrina—
that's it—you're getting warm now
—the Kipling, Sabrina, you can't miss it—no, the shelf above that one—above it—"

SOCIETY NEWS

Good Habits Are Urged for School Child

Early each September a new generation of students makes its appearance in the schools for the first time. Most of the youngsters who are approaching life outside the shelter of the home for the first time will develop powers of adjustment, both physically and emotionally, to the new environment. A certain number, however, find it difficult to meet the changes of environment and supervision brought about by entrance into school life, according to a Health Talk issued by the Educational Committee of the Illinois State Medical Society.

The foresight of some parents has seen many of these children to their doctors for a physical examination before school opens. This program is continually urged by the annual Summer Round-Up of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers; by it many defects have been discovered and, it is to be hoped, remedied.

The parent of the child entering school for the first time should be understanding and sympathetic with the child and help him meet the new problems that arise. The child, for instance, will pick up words or traits from other children which are undesirable, though usually meaningless; they must be eliminated by patient effort. Patience will also be necessary to answer the many questions brought on by the instruction at school; a child's curiosity is a natural development and should be satisfied.

Care must be exercised in the handling of children who will show excitability on mingling with others.

Parents should remember that careful training will help the child to adjust more easily to the new life of learning as apart from the protected atmosphere of the home.

Proper sleep is especially important for the child starting to school. Some experts recommend one to two hours a day in bed each afternoon for children from the ages of six to 13, and these afternoon naps should be encouraged until they seem to delay the going to sleep in the evening. Children under seven or eight should sleep twelve hours daily. Sleep is an important factor in the development of the child.

The entrance into school is also a good time to lay stress on adhering to good health habits. Good posture, cleanliness and neatness and proper diet should be encouraged as much as possible, because it is in these early years that habits and conditioning which bear on the child's future are acquired forever.

In homes where good health habits have been encouraged from early infancy, there is little need for this warning. But the child coming from a home lax about good hygiene may be ridiculed and teased to a point where an emotional complex develops that will persist for years.

The child entering school for the first time deserves many considerations, not only from the parents but from adult friends. The child of today is the man of tomorrow and should be given every aid to develop into a useful, stable and healthy citizen.

Garden Dept. Has Mon. School

Loveland Community House was the scene Monday of the all-day school of flower arrangement held by the garden department of the Dixon Woman's club.

The school opened at 10 a. m. with Mrs. J. R. McDaniel lecturing on the fundamentals of flower arrangement, discussing design, scale, balance, harmony, rhythm, and focus. Mrs. McDaniel said, "Flower arrangement is an art, making a picture in which living life and living colors form the artist's medium." By using a color chart the 18 segments used by flower arrangers were shown.

Monochromatic, analogous, complimentary and triadic colors were worked out. The triangle design was used for arrangements by the class when they used the lovely fall garden flowers now in bloom.

Harold Cook taught the class in the afternoon. He checked and commented on the ladies' work and also made arrangements with the more difficult styles.

The class members enjoyed a picnic luncheon at noon and the next meeting will be held October 18 when fall and winter arrangements using dried materials will be made.

It was reported by the floral trail committee that plans are being made to begin work on the trail in October.

Members of the garden department and their husbands are invited to the home of Mrs. Mary Brown, 804 Chula Vista at 7:30 Thursday evening, Sept. 23, to view kodachrome travel and flower pictures.

Reception at Country Club Follows Jensen-Maynard Wedding

St. Luke's Episcopal church was the setting of an impressive wedding ceremony Saturday afternoon, September 11, uniting in marriage Miss Janice Jensen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jensen of Dixon and John Maynard, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Maynard of East Alton, Ill. Rev. George Curran, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church, read the double ring ceremony with Dr. Malcolm Stewart, professor of philosophy and religion of Illinois college assisting.

The church was beautifully decorated with candelabra and baskets of white gladioli and the pews were individually marked with white chrysanthemums tied with white satin bows. Preceding the ceremony, Mrs. Eleanor Chapman played appropriate music on the organ. Miss Mary Elaine Drew, lovely in orchid marquisette, sang "Ave Maria" and "Because".

The attractive bride entered the church on the arm of her father. She was wearing a lovely white gown of lace with a short train. Tiny seed pearls ornamented the dress holding her white net fingertip veil edged in chantilly lace. She carried a bouquet of white Amazon lilies and stephanotis and her only jewelry was a double strand of pearls, a gift of the groom.

Miss Diane Rybick, maid of honor, wore a gown of green lace with matching Juliet cap and mitts. The bridesmaids were Nancy McCool of Freeport and Norma McBride of Dixon in pink lace; Mal Rorack of Bloomington and Carolyn Peterson of Chicago Heights in blue lace; and Arlyne Hanson of Chicago and Alice Maynard, sister of the groom, in yellow lace. They each carried semi-colonial bouquets of mixed flowers.

The flower girl, Miss Kay Lund, daughter of the A. V. Lunds of Dixon carried a white basket of pink rose petals. She wore a floor-length gown of white lace with matching mitts and a band of white baby mums in her hair. The ring bearer, Greg Thorsen, cousin of the bride, wore a brown tweed suit. He carried both rings on a white satin pillow.

Ed Harmon of Pekin was best man and ushers were the bride's brother, Guy Jensen, Vasil Ertimoff, Granite City; Robert Paton, Woodriver; Robert Lewis, East Alton; Gilmore Rhea, Woodriver, and Gerald Warton of Chicago.

Mrs. Jensen, mother of the bride, wore a brown print dress and Mrs. Maynard, mother of the groom wore a black crepe dress. Both wore corsages of yellow pom-pom mums.

Reception at Club

Following the ceremony, the reception was held at the Dixon Country club. Baskets of white and pink gladioli and pink mums with huckleberry decorated the dining room and ballroom. The five tiered wedding cake was placed in a ring of white gladioli and huckleberry. After the bride and groom had cut the first piece of cake, Shirley McClannahan and Carma Lov Broad helped cut and serve it. Betty Jost of Palatine and Eleanor Rossman of Chicago assisted in the serving of the buffet supper. Jo Anne Risley and Janice Koonce poured coffee. Barbara Langan was in charge of the guest book. Music for the dancing was furnished by William Worley.

When the newly-weds left on a wedding trip to Quebec, Canada, she was wearing a brown mens cloth suit and a corsage of Amazon lilies from her wedding bouquet.

Both the bride and groom are attending Illinois college at Jacksonville, Ill., and will be at home at 1212 South Clay avenue, Jacksonville.

Out of town guests included relatives and friends from Chicago, East Alton, Gary, Ind.; Geneva, St. Charles, Forest Lake, Merrill, Wis.; Chicago Heights, Peoria, Ottawa, Springfield, Decatur, Elgin and DeKalb.

AAUW Review Group Meets

The Non-Fictional Review Group of the AAUW appreciated greatly the informative review which Mrs. Harry Lauer gave Monday evening at their first meeting. Mrs. Lauer presented the beautifully illustrated book "Painters and Personality" by Sam Lewison, with the author's theory that an artist's work is influenced more by his own personality than by any movement. He is a part of these movements but he uses only what appeals to him. This theory was applied to each of the best known of the modern artists among whom are: Cezanne, Renoir, Van Gogh and Matisse.

'Highly Important'

vania. Nelson refused to answer committee questions on grounds that he might incriminate himself.
Perjury Suspected
Possibility of still another legal move stemmed from McDowell's statement that the committee has received conflicting testimony from several witnesses. "It looks," he said, "as though perjury has been committed."
But before taking any action, he added, "we want to sift it out first, and try to untangle some things."
The committee faces a heavy fall agenda. Tentatively scheduled, McDowell said, are new hearings on Communist activities in Hollywood, an investigation of Communist work among Negro organizations, and a hearing for Dr. Edward U. Condon, head of the National Bureau of Standards.
Condon was called by the committee "one of the weakest links" in the nation's atomic security—a charge which he flatly denied.
McDowell said he believes the committee has enough evidence to press for espionage indictments against the three persons he mentioned.

Claims Much Evidence
The committee has much more evidence than the justice department, he added, and has been working on the case since June. Chairman J. Parnell Thomas (R-NJ) has said all the information the group has eventually will be turned over to government attorneys for possible prosecutions.
Last week, a congressional call for indictments against known American Communists resulted in a flare-up between Senator Ferguson (R-Mich.), who had offered the suggestion, and Attorney General Clark, to whom it was sent. Clark issued a heated statement in which he told Ferguson, in effect, to stop interfering in justice department affairs.
McDowell emphasized that he spoke only for himself in recommending the three espionage indictments. But he said he was confident at least one other committee member feels the same way. He and Rep. Vail (R-Ill.) have handled most of the questioning in the espionage case.
Couple Cooperative
The Pennsylvania lawmaker and Aep. Herbert (D-La.) questioned Dr. Joseph W. Weinberg, an assistant physics professor at the University of Minnesota, yesterday. Dr. Weinberg "freely answered all questions," McDowell said, and may be called back later.
The committee also talked to Dr. and Mrs. Paul Massing of New York, German refugees who have been in this country since 1937. They were questioned regarding espionage information they have picked up since coming to the United States, McDowell explained, and were "very cooperative."
Massing is now a sociology professor at Rutgers University.

The deer situation in Illinois, particularly along the Rock river, is the subject of an article in the current number of Illinois Wildlife, official publication of the Illinois Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs.

Clayton C. Swears, biologist and leader of a project studying the deer problem, says:

"It is known that much of the present and potential deer range in Illinois to be found in the southern quarter of the state. A large portion of the best habitat is located within or in proximity to the Shawnee National Forest in southern Illinois. Here also other areas are in bottomland timber or upland where agricultural use is declining in intensity. This region as far as present facts are known, is the only region of the state that offers the necessary pre-requisites for big game shooting. In addition to the southern Illinois region, acceptable deer range in the state is limited to relatively small areas in Ogle, Winnebago, and other northwestern counties. By comparison with the southern Illinois range, these areas offer little for future development. But at the present time, even though deer are much more abundant in these areas, the proximity of the concentrations to high population centers preclude the possibility of a hunting season. Another prohibiting factor is the fact that many of the deer inhabit the larger estates where hunting in any form would not be allowed.

"The most urgent problem relative to the existing deer herd concerns that area adjacent to the Rock river from the city of Oregon to the city of Rockford. This concentration of approximately 1,500 animals is largely confined to the relatively small wooded areas along a strip approximately three miles wide on either side of Rock river. However, as part of this area includes agricultural land and most of it is adjacent to such land, considerable concern is being voiced over the result of the probable increase in the size of the herd and its effect upon agricultural interests.

"During the past year several deer damage complaints were received by the department of conservation. Investigation showed that although all complaints were not justified it was evident that numerically the herd had reached its critical stage beyond which extensive damage to agricultural crops could be expected. None of the land owners interviewed desired to see the herd eliminated or open to any form of a legal shooting. Most expressed their sentiments by saying that they enjoyed the presence of the animals and did not object to the small amount of damage suffered. On the other hand they made it quite clear that any increase in the number of deer would be unwelcome.

"Although detailed and verified information relative to the inception of this herd is lacking, information at hand points to the fact that in the 1890's an unknown number of deer were enclosed on an estate near Polo. Some years later this herd was sold to the McCormick estate located north of Oregon between that city and Rockford where it was likewise enclosed.

"Apparently the herd remained confined to this restricted area until some time in the 1920's when a rather severe wind storm blew down many trees and resulted in large openings being torn in the fence. Before adequate repairs could be made the herd escaped.

Doctor H. E. Wade of Oregon, contributed the above information which appears to be substantiated by other bits of information relative to the origin of the herd. Dr. Wade, who is at present some 80 years old has spent most of his life in this vicinity and recalls the above facts quite vividly. Verification is lacking to prove that deer might have migrated south across the Wisconsin border.

"No one cares to venture a guess as to the number of animals involved in the original restricted herd. The original number was relatively small as indicated by the fact that only in the past few years have deer been a common sight in this area. The population in this area was considered to be high by 1940 and by 1945 heavy damage was noted to woodlots. Today the woodlots in and adjacent to the concentration are fast taking on a park-like appearance due to an almost complete lack of reproduction and undergrowth. No deer, however, have been observed or examined that showed signs of starvation or mal-nutrition. Apparently, farm crops make up a large part of the winter diet of this herd.

"Unfortunately, only one known attempt has been made to obtain an accurate census of this herd. During February, 1947, Willet N. Wandell, Forester of the Natural History Survey and one of the supervisors of this project, and William L. Preno, biologist with the department of conservation, made a partial aerial census on the Rock river range. Flights were made in a small plane at a time when 10 to 12 inches of snow could be found in the wooded areas. With such a background and with only fair visibility it was relatively easy to spot, count, and photograph any animals along the course of flight.

"The following calculations allow for what is considered a reliable figure on the size of the herd before the 1947 fawn crop:

Area censused	8,000 acres
Deer recorded on census area	655
Calculated total for censused area	873
Percent of total deer range covered	67
Calculated size of herd	1,300

The calculations give us a figure of one deer for every 9.2 acres of woodland. Such a high population could not be maintained on the basis of food available in these woodlots and it becomes obvious, therefore, that much of their food comes from other sources.

"How can the Rock river herd be reduced to a manageable number and the surplus removed each year? Live trapping and removal to suitable habitat elsewhere in the state offers one possibility. During the past winter 14 live-traps were in operation on the Rock river range for approximately 10 weeks, but only 42 animals were successfully trapped.

"One other solution that has been suggested for the reduction of the herd has been a rigidly controlled shooting program. A recommendation of this sort is not highly practical due to the numerous complications involved in controlling an open season and the fact that public sentiment in this area and adjacent population centers is definitely opposed to a sizeable decrease in the deer herd.

Indications are that the deer herd originally began as long ago as 1835, however. An Ogle county history written by John V. Gale, mentions that many deer inhabited the countryside in 1835.

"In the winter of 1842-43," Gale says, "we had a great deal of snow with a heavy crust that would bear a man. A deer would break through on the run. A great many were killed that winter by the Indians that were camped below town."

Face Cards With Chance to Ice Flag

(By the Associated Press)

The Boston Braves can clinch their first pennant in 34 years today but the baseball spotlight will be centered on Cleveland where the Indians tackle the Boston Red Sox with first place in the American league at stake.

Billy Southworth's Braves, who have had the National league pennant virtually sewed up for weeks, can mathematically win it today by beating the St. Louis Cardinals, providing the runner-up Brooklyn Dodgers bow to Pittsburgh.

The Braves virtually killed off the remaining pennant hopes of both the Cards and Dodgers yesterday, taking a twin bill from the Redbirds, 11-3 and 4-0 while the Dodgers bowed, 12-11 and 6-3 to Pittsburgh.

However, the baseball attention will be riveted on the Red Sox-Indian clash under the lights at Cleveland's Municipal stadium.

The league-leading Red Sox are only a game in front of the runner-up Indians who have won their last six starts. A Cleveland victory would put the two teams in a flat-footed tie for the lead. A Boston triumph would jump the Red Sox two games ahead with only eight games left to play for each team.

The Red Sox trounced the Detroit Tigers, 10-2, yesterday in the only game played in the American league. Lefty Mel Parnell, at though injured for 11 days, coasted to his 14th victory. The Red Sox opened with two runs in the first inning and led the decision with six more in the third.

Johnny Sam, the Braves' star highlander and rookie Vern Borkford, turned back the Cardinals on nine and four hits respectively. Sam's victory was his 22nd-top mark in either league.

Pittsburgh's 12-11 win over Brooklyn completed a game that began in Pittsburgh on Aug. 25 when a ninth inning protest by the Pirates was upheld.

The New York Giants and the Chicago Cubs divided a day-night doubleheader by identical 3-2 scores. Johnny Mize clouted his 35th homer with two on.

Andy Pafko's three-run ninth inning homer enabled the Cubs to grab the nightcap and end a 10 game losing streak.

Pafko's punch gave Johnny Schmitz, the Cubs' tireless lefty, his 15th triumph. He held the sluggers hitless until the eighth inning when rookie Sam Webb, his mound rival, singled. Danny Lynch, Chicago's young recruit, batted for Schmitz to start the ninth and singled. He eventually came along with Phil Cavaretta, who walked, on Pafko's four out.

The Cincinnati Reds and the Philadelphia Phillies also split a day-night twin bill. The Reds won the first game, 6-5, and the Phillies took the nightcap, 6-1.

NEW MIDDLEWEIGHT CHAMP

Cerdan Takes Body Blows; KO's Zale

Jersey City, N. J., Sept. 22 — (AP) — Marcel Cerdan, a laughing Latin from Casablanca, is the new middleweight champion of the world, because he took Tony Zale's body blows and kept punching.

In the fourth round of last night's title fight at Roosevelt stadium, it looked as though Zale was about to tear apart the 32-year-old tiger of France. Cerdan winced and blinked his eyes as Tony landed a blockbuster under the heart. But he didn't go down.

That was where Zale lost his title and Cerdan, a product of wartime France, saw the way clear to realizing his lifetime ambition.

Once Zale had shot his heaviest artillery he had nothing left. Cerdan hooked to the head, led with his right, feinted the fading champ into schoolboy errors and trussed him up for the kill.

Zale was a tired old man of 34, dead on his feet with no zip left in his punches from the sixth round on. Only the fierce pride of a champion kept him off the floor until he collapsed—as the New Jersey official physician said "from exhaustion"—just after the bell ended the 11th round.

The Frenchman seemed a bit surprised to see him tumble. For the last few blows to the head had been no harder than a hundred others he had thrown during the chilly evening. Co-manager Art Winch and Trainer Ray Arndt dragged Zale to his corner like a sack of potatoes. Then Winch and his partner, Sam Pann, signalled Referee Paul Cavalier he could not continue.

Under New Jersey rules they went through the formality of ringing the bell for the 12th and announcing that he had been knocked out in 12, but it didn't matter. Tony could do no more fighting that evening—and maybe never.

Although Zale and his managers hesitate to make it official, asking for a few days to "make up our minds," it was apparent to most of the crowd of 10,272 which paid a sub-par gate of $242,870 that Tony was all finished.

Next in line for Cerdan is supposed to be a return bout with Zale, but they may never happen. Only the fierce pride of a champion kept him off the floor until he collapsed—as the New Jersey official physician said "from exhaustion"—just after the bell ended the 11th round.

Rain Forces Dukes Varsity Indoors

Rain forced the Dixon Dukes inside last night as Coach Sam Owens continued preparations for Friday night's pigskin tiff with Amboy here.

The varsity squad huddled in a skull session, discussing plays and strategy for the game, which will represent the stiffest test to date. Amboy opened with an 18-6 triumph over Mendota last week.

A veteran backfield that includes speedster Ronnie Ellis figures to give the Purple and White trouble. However, the locals will counter with a potent attack of their own, one that has scored five touchdowns in a pair of winning starts.

Guard Brad Nusbaum, sidelined by illness last week, has not rejoined the squad as yet and probably will not be ready until the Hall Township scrap Oct. 1.

Despite the wet grounds, Coach Lloyd Swan had his fresh-soph engaged in a contact session last night. The underclassmen unit launched its schedule by playing Sycamore to a 0-0 draw.

Irish Good? We'll See Saturday!

South Bend, Ind., Sept. 22 — (AP) — Notre Dame is shooting for its third straight year without a loss—and the very first target should tell whether the team has enough ammunition.

The 1948 squad, on pre-season paper, looks like it has what it takes to knock off ten assorted opponents.

But the question of its ability can be answered better about 5 p.m. on Sept. 25. That's the date of the Notre Dame-Purdue match. And Purdue, strong and seasoned, rates as a potential Big Nine champ.

The Irish will go into the campaign without the star who guided them through seasons unblemished by defeat in 1946 and 1947—Johnny Lujack. They also will miss such stalwarts of the line as George Connor, Ziggy Czarobski and George Strohmeyer, and backs like Bob Livingstone, Bill Gompers, Floyd Simmons, Corwin Clatt and Pete Ashbaugh.

But they still have the coaching magic of Frank Leahy and a gang of big and swift young men to carry the victory chain.

The team will be built on the firm foundation of 24 lettermen. Toughest task will be filling Lujack's old job at quarterback. Lujack's heir presumptive is Frank Tripucka. Tripucka is a good passer. But since he didn't see a lot of action as Lujack's understudy, his efficiency as a field general remains to be tested.

Leahy will be able to present a line made up of veterans who will average more than 200 pounds. Best of the six monogram men available for guard duty are Bill Fischer, the 230-pound captain, and Marty Wendell, who is not so heavy but just as rugged.

Three letter winners are ready for service at the tackles—Ralph McGehee, Augie Cifelli and Ted Budynkiewicz—and two more are on deck for center chores—Bill Walsh and Walter Grothaus.

Halfback material includes Terry Brennan, a fast and furious ball

The Irish need yield to nobody when it comes to class at the ends. Jim Martin and Leon Hart will work there. Both tower more than six feet and top 200 in weight.

Carrier, Emil Sitko, Ernie Zaleski, Larry Corbin and Coy McGee, the little spark specialist, John Panelli and Mike Swistowicz will be on hand for fullback roles. And reserves, numerically at least, are never a problem at Notre Dame.

Learning to Quit Hardest Lesson in Mankind's Lifetime

By HAL BOYLE

New York—(AP)—One of the hardest things in life for any man to master is the fine art of quitting.

This 24-karat truth is pointed out anew by the decision of Joseph Louis, the eminent pugilist, to resume his former calling.

At the ripe old age of 34, he has amassed enough gelt to last him his declining years. Joe announced he was through with his professional fist-fighting. He decided to trade in his gloves on a typewriter and launch a new career as a writer.

unmistakable for a Harlem time without you. Just once more, newspaper.

Trying a new job was no menial pressure, the "you're-the-only-hurdle-for-Joe" He was a one-who-who-do-it flattery. And newsboy, shined shoes, ran errands, so the aching muscle or the weary hands, delivered ice and worked hard and goes back "just once more" in an automobile factory before he goes into the fray. And too often what would how easy he could quit. It happens is what happened to Jim. His income merely by doubling his retirement for a flabby rendezvous.

But now Joe has changed his mind again—as have many others—Jack Johnson at Reno in 1910 and Jimmie F. Clegg at the time of the Turner, a second time, and the old he's going to try to go to Napoleon when he met a telephone fight next June, when he was called "The Iron Duke" at a place in the road called Waterloo.

"Just one more, Joe!"

It's hard to resist that plea. Sometimes the plea comes from within a champion's own heart. At the peak is even more difficult. Often it comes from the outside for the common man than it is for the champion in any field. To the ordinary man an entire life's feathering their own nests and retirement isn't just a blow to the ego, it's usually a catastrophe.

It's true of politicians, business men, and warriors as well as athletes. Retirement is to him a loss. There's always a group that wants him to stay in there, but after their own way, and then it's time to step down.

"Just one more," they're told. We need you. We can't win this.

Harder for Common Man

It's hard to quit. Perhaps the most gracious "quitter" of our day is Winston Churchill. He quits every time the voters toss him out, and goes off and writes some best-selling memoirs and paints some pictures.

Then, refreshed in spirit, Churchill rides back again into high public office on the changing tide, smiling and eloquent as ever and holding no resentment against the voters.

This unsinkable cork in the flood of modern history is the real political heavyweight of our times. He quits only to try again—and he's made more comebacks than Yo-Yo.

Swinging Door for Cat Admits Skunk to Home

Nutley, N. J., Sept. 22.—(AP)—The Frederick Heidt family installed a little swinging door in their kitchen so their cat could go in and out at will.

The other day a furry stranger used the special entrance.

The disturbed family called police who snared the skunk and shot it in the back yard.
